STATE NEWS.

The Portland Park Commissioners have bought part of the old city cattle enclosure and will erect on it a bowling alley, and perhaps a restaurant.

Mr. J. W. Fillebrown, proprietor of "Fillebrown's" sporting house at Pine Point, Scarboro, is reported to be in a critical condition from a stroke of paralysis. He has gone to Boston to consult the old, and will continue many improvements.

A young clerk in Portland has been embezzling funds from the firm and misappropriated the money belonging to a complaining boy of whom he was trustee. He has lost his position, but the firm will not prosecute him.

Mr. Dyer, of Portland, the inventor of the trap for preventing Americans fishing otherwise than with hook, managed to get to an entertainment for the Canadians at the new "Bell" hotel, Quebec, and invited enough tops about the coast to advertise the hotel favorably for the purchase of any fish in Canada by our fishermen.

A suit at law for alleged malpractice was begun in the Superior Court, Portland, Monday. The plaintiff in the suit is Mrs. Charles Dolan, of Portland, and the defendant, Dr. Shortland, of Yarmouth. The alleged malpractice is said to consist of a broken leg. The suit is for $12,000 damages. Attorneys Strout have been retained for Mr. and Mrs. Dolan appearing for the plaintiff, and Hon. W. L. Putnam for the defense.

Dr. A. G. Young leaves Augusta on the 15th of the month, and will locate in Milwaukee, where he will succeed the present editor of the American Public Health Association, as a delegate from the Maine Board of Health. The convention will contain at least seven hundred delegates from the United States and Canada. Maine was not represented at the last convention.

For some time the duties of commissary at the National Home D. V. S. have been performed by Capt. Lapham, of Augusta, Capt. Lapham has been much needed for the duties of quartermaster's assistant. Capt. Ray P. Cowen, of Bath, has been commissioned, and was to report on his new duties Monday. Capt. Cowen is a man eminently fitted for his new position. He will have especial charge of the soldiers' rations.

Albert G. Nichols was born to enter the profession of Mrs. Grimes Hamlin, near the Maine line, Augusta, had planning, scheming, and suggesting been after what a boy he was full of bad notions. He was frequently seized by Henry A. Farmer, who had been warning him, and being warned over to Special Officer Wade, was taken to jail. It is said that Nichols who is an old offender, has broken into the house several times before and stolen jewelry, money, and domestic utensils. Mrs. Hamlin has no home in Augusta, and the residence has been for sometime unoccupied.

Friday night, Wm. Lowe, of the firm of Lowe & Wells, of Waterville, placed in the safe $500 in bills and silver, intending to deposit it in the afternoon, forgetting that the safe was not unlocked. On coming to the safe in the afternoon, the whole amount was missing. He at once informed Deputy Sheriff Fay, who, with a search warrant, went to the house of Frank Lowe, a brother of the owner of the safe, and found $400 in bills secreted in the cellar. A search of the room of one of the boarders brought to light $200 of the money. The remainder having been spent by Lowe, who, when returned, had but $100 in his possession. The money was recovered.

Mr. Dyer, of Portland, the inventor of the trap for preventing Americans fishing otherwise than with hook, managed to get to an entertainment for the Canadians at the new "Bell" hotel, Quebec, and invited enough tops about the coast to advertise the hotel favorably for the purchase of any fish in Canada by our fishermen.

A cab patron is protected at Saint Louis. Driver is being found in good condition in the Federal Penitentiary, Ohio.

Personal friends of President Patton, of Princeton College, have recently given him heirloom spoons.

A few days ago a Kennebec Yankee finished through a large plate glass window on Fifth avenue, New York, escaping in the other way. Both were badly hurt.

It is stated that the city of Paris has a remarkable system of shade control consisting of tenement in monotreme with bands of contrasting material of various designs to represent borderings and stripes [illegible] loops, gimps, in applique, arabesque designs in gilt velvet, woven cut into stripes, velvet ribbon, and innumerable beaded garnitures of every device, will all be used for this purpose.

The English short coat, cut away very much in front and fastening dragonally across the chest, is one of the autumn styles which has proved very popular. Beneath this is a glove-fitting Bretonne waistcoat of chamois-colored bengaline or faille, embroidered or braided, with large gilded buttons the color of the coat skirt. Another style shows the right front cut wide enough to lap in double-breasted fashion from the throat to the waist, where it is fastened with a silver buckle and belt. It is very much in vogue, having a broad agony opening, filled in by a vest instead of heavy Oriental brocade. The skirting is made by means of three large buttons set upon the edge of the overlapping portion.

Imperial coats, simply semi-fitted, are opened to view. These are designed to be worn for less the autumn, and with the addition of a chemisette vest, all winter. They are made of velvet, and also of the seasonable fabrics, in figured goods and rich plain colors, in fancy stripes, and in the favorite colors of London, with fabrics in front and narrow cuffs to match, brought on the side skirts. These coats fasten in front and narrow cuffs to match, brought on the side skirts. These coats fasten in front and narrow cuffs to match, brought on the side skirts. These coats fasten

Carbarabasset and Canadian Railroad Civil Engineer Henry A Hanson has made a reconnoissance of Northern Maine in the interest of the projected railroad, for the purpose of determining upon the most profitable route to connect the Canadian Pacific with the deep sea harbors of our coast In his report just made he gives the approximate and total distances from North Anson to the Canadian Pacific railroad as follows North Anson to Kingfield, 18 miles; Kingfield to Cleaves Intervale 9 miles, Cleaves Intervale to Sweat ton Brook Headquarters, 8 miles; Stratton Brook Headquarters to Ellen Place, 8 miles, Ellen Place to Austin, 6 miles, Austin to Chain of Lakes, 12 miles, length of Chain of Lakes, 12 miles, Chain of Lakes to boundary 9 miles, total distance from North Anson to the boundary, 82 miles, boundary to Canadian Pacific railroad, 15 miles, total distance from North Anson to Canadian Pacific railroad, 97 miles He estimates that a first class road with railings stations and buildings could be constructed for $12,000 a mile, or $1,164,000 from North Anson to the boundary. A first meeting of corporators under the legislative special issue of 1880 has been called by Messrs William Atherton, Selden Connor and C W Sargent, of the corporators, to meet at North Anson to-morrow at ten o clock A M., for the purpose of organizing the Carrabasset and Canadian Railroad Company and the transaction of other legal business

Bangor's Electric Light Plant

Commission for its Establishment at the Water Works

Mr Fred H Whipple, of Detroit, Mich., an experienced electric engineering expert, who has been requested by Mayor Bragg and the committee of the City Government to examine the situation and estimate the cost of the city putting in a new electric light plant, arrived in the city yesterday morning Yesterday forenoon Mr Whipple, accompanied by Mayor Bragg, Alderman McClure, and Councilmen Mansfield and Fenty, the committee, visited the water works to see what the outlook was for establishing the plant there He made a thorough examination of the building the situation, power, etc., and then said that everything that he had seen indicated a very favorable position for the plant, which in his opinion could be placed there with ease, and operated at low expense He said that there is plenty of room for the new machinery that would be put in, that there is more power than would be needed, and that the electric current could be easily transmitted to wherever it would be needed

Furthermore Mr Whipple says that the location at the water works is the best that he has ever seen in any place, and he has visited very many localities throughout the United States He is now engaged in making specifications and establishing electric light and electric railway plants in a number of towns and cities in different parts of the country, and he has had an extended experience in his business. Among other contracts he is now engaged upon one at Marquette, Mich., where he is superintending the putting in of a complete water power to run water works, electric light and electric railway plants Mr. Whipple is not the opponent of any particular system of electricity, but carries out the system that is selected by the city, town, or company which wishes to establish the plant. He will remain in the city several days, in which time he will make further examinations and complete his figuring for the estimate

Yesterday afternoon Mr Whipple with Mayor Bragg, the above committee, and Aldermen W. A. Bragg, chairman of the Committee on Street Lighting, made a trip about the city noting the different lights and examining the circuits. In conversation with a News reporter last evening Mr Whipple spoke very favorably of the new movement He said that as the water works there are three wheels each of which is capable of 125 horse power, and which are not now being used To be on the safe side he would only consider that 300 horse power was going to waste. It only requires 100 horse power to run 120 arc lights and the starting at the works is so arranged that there will be no need of help The same persons who now officiate at the works could conduct the electric light plant as well, and it would require no extra force, with the exception of two line men. In case the city should decide to have its own plant and establish 150 or 180 lights, great area could be used to excellent advantage so that the light might be brought into the center of the street. The lights should be at a height of from thirty to forty feet, according to the location

Mr Whipple made a rough estimate of the cost per year of maintaining a 150 light plant, the lights to run all night, or 4,200 hours during the year, and every night, as follows:

150 arc lamps,
Interest on cost of plant, 6 per cent.
Insurance,
Repairs,
Coal,
Total,	$6,000

As the incandescent lights which are ... to be ... the cost of ...

The gas and globe lights which would be discontinued under the new system, the change with the city thoroughly lighted from one end to the other would be a great saving. With 150 arcs the streets would be brilliantly lighted and at a cost of but little more than is at present expended for comparatively lights. Under the new plan the city would be lighted thoroughly as far as West Bangor on Hammond street, the junction of Broadway and Center streets, and to an equal distance in other directions, making a completely lighted city This evening Mr Whipple will meet the City Government and explain what can be done in the matter

Annual Banquet of the Penobscot County Medical Association

The pleasant occasion, the annual banquet of the Penobscot County Medical Association, occurred last night at the Bangor House, and as usual proved a feast to the body and mind together, through the delicious viands and the remarks which followed their discussion As about 6.30 o'clock the members of the Association wended their way to the dining room and took their seats about the long tables according to the cards which marked each person's plot The following were present Dr A C Hamlin, Dr E N Mayo, of Orono, Dr Alfred Walton, Dr E B Cushing, Dr S B Morison, Dr F H Chase Dr H P Hanson, Dr King, of Bar Harbor, Dr G A Phillips, of Ellsworth, Dr D A Robinson, Dr I H Wheeler, of Brewer, Dr A K Lorey Dr J K Phillips, Dr C D Edmonds, Dr W E Baxter, Dr G M Woodcock and Dr W C Mason, Commercial and Whig reporters

The table presented a charming appearance and Manager Rouch had evidently given much time and thought to its arrangement Many complimentary remarks were passed upon it The contents were of a delicious order and proved the resources of the larder of that popular hotel, the Bangor House The menu was a very attractive one and contained a list of dishes that delighted the palates of those who partook of the toothsome viands, which were served by an able corps of waiters After these had been fully enjoyed the post prandial exercises were in order

Dr A C Hamlin acted as toast master and in calling the assemblage to order said he was glad to see so many of the members gathered around the social board The empty chairs reminded him of those who in times past were wont to meet with the Association but who would never do so again He said that he knew harmony existed in the ranks of the Association and hoped that it would continue. Dr Hamlin then called upon Dr Walton the new President for remarks

Dr Walton said that he was somewhat surprised at hearing that he had been chosen President, but he would try to fulfill the duties of the position as well as he was able He was pleased to hear the toastmaster say the Association was united and he thought it more so now than ever it had been The former matters that had divided the society have been eliminated, and all is now harmonious We needs to be united for we need counsel with one another, for on our consultations depend the health and happiness of the country We can feel that our brother physicians will give us their free and honest opinions

Dr S B Morison was next called upon He referred in feeling terms to the older physicians, and told some anecdotes concerning them, which were very interesting to the hearers

Dr Hanson spoke of some of the possibilities of patents, and thought they should be subjects of much consideration He would say long life to the patent.

Dr Phillips, of Ellsworth, said that there are less than half a dozen in Maine who practice the real Homeopathy The great bulk of them are honest, while here and there we find men, as in all callings, who are simply doctoring for the dollar, but I believe that the most of them are men who will do all they can for the welfare of life. The great majority are honorable men Sometimes we are called to consult with them, and however much the difference in belief is it ought not to make any difference in a moral aspect When it is questioned shall we, when asked, consult with them, I unhesitatingly answer "yes" I believe that there is no way to root homeopathy from the public except to meet their physicians in consultation for when one of them realizes for help outside of himself the public can then judge of their strength in their belief Dr Phillips concluded his remarks with a humorous and witty poem

Dr Mason spoke of the Penobscot Medical Association as follows The past of this Association has been and still is a reality, it has its existence upon our record books where are recorded the proceedings of our thirty-five annual meetings There can also be found the accounts of the several banquets, and last but not least the names of those who have been members The past has been imprinted upon the minds of some of our members But what of the future? The past has been bright and there is no reason, why the future should not be To make it so, however, we must make an effort and keep up our interest We now number nearly fifty and as there is strength in numbers, we should try to add to the membership, not merely in numbers but in ability. We have a large field to draw from We should have a share of our own and commence to cultivate it liberally, also a subject of professional speculation. A student could easily be obtained The regular appointment at the meetings is one of the indispensable conditions, and must be obtaining a large membership, this is the most important fact. The question of ethics, asking for the members to abide by arbitrary rules, is a different one, and considerable trouble has sometimes arisen in applying the code to the society There should be unity and freedom from ill feelings among the members of our society, and the meetings should be fully attended, that they may be of mutual benefit to all

Dr. W. E. Baxter was called upon to respond for the new members He said that in speaking for the ethics of the association he thought that it should be the custom of the older physicians to call upon the new members rather than the reverse

Dr. D A. Robinson was called upon for general remarks. He confined himself to saying that he had enjoyed the banquet very much and also the remarks that had been made.

Dr. Hayes, in response to a call for remarks, said that the remarks of Dr. Phillips fitted him some, as he had been on the best of terms with the homeopathic physicians of the state, who had frequently consulted with him. I see no reason why we should not, especially with homeopathic physicians. If the members of the association will take hold of the association in earnest I believe it will become a very valuable aid to the medical profession.

Dr. Phillips, [illegible] of Dr. Chadbourne, of Bangor, by Dr. Chadbourne, [illegible] was one which enjoyed by all who participated and much credit is due the committee of arrangements, Dr J K Phillips and Dr C D Edmonds for the manner in which the affair was conducted

At the annual meeting in the afternoon Dr Mayo delivered the annual address upon The Hygiene of the Home and Dr Mason read an obituary of the late Dr K K Jones Five new members were admitted to the association The following officers were elected President Dr Alfred Walton, Vice Presidents, Dr D A Robinson, and Dr Phillips, of Ellsworth Secretary and Treasurer Dr C D Edmonds, Standing Committee Drs. H. N. Hayes, C. B. Woodcock, J. K. Phillips and F Hanson J H Wheeler

BUCKSPORT REPUBLICANS.

A Splendid Ovation—Speech of Hon Wilson

According to previous announcement a mass meeting in the way of invitation of the Harrison Lunn of Bucksport, the Legal Tenders met in good numbers at City Hall last night and with members of the Harrison Guards, Hyperion Club and Harrison Cowboys, marched to the Water Station depot, headed by the Bangor Band. A special train had been provided under the careful charge of Conductor Marshall Farr, and the company came together with a large number of citizens from the surrounding towns and left for Bucksport a little before seven o'clock

Congressman Boutelle was also on the train by special invitation as guest of the Bucksport people He was made a good host and on approaching the town the streamers with the bonfire from behind brilliantly illuminated presented a beautiful appearance while across the river in Prospect, the residence of Mr Pierce on the fort was one of the handsomest pictures ever presented, the hundreds of lights in the house and the town being only eclipsed by the magnificent bonfire that was up On arrival at the dock port station Mr Boutelle was met by Hon Jeremiah Buck and W. McAllister and A. H. Crosby, Esq. who had charge of the arrangements and escorted him to the residence of Mr McAllister and later to that of Mr Spofford, at both of which places he was most hospitably entertained

The companies were met by the Bucksport organizations carrying torches and quite and expensive signal rockets and the column was formed under charge of Col S P Perkins as Marshal, the whole bearing on him and headed by the Band, paraded the streets of the town The illuminations were many and brilliant quite and the whole affair was an enthusiastic one, it would be useless for us to attempt to describe the many places illuminated in detail, suffice the most extravagant but it was a fitting display of the kind we have seen and showed that every Republican was working with a will for success

The meeting was held in the Opera House which was packed to its utmost capacity and the meeting was called to order by Hon Jeremiah Buck, who introduced Hon Eugene Hale, Republican candidate for Congress, who was received with cheers and addressed the meeting in a speech of about three quarters of an hour. He took occasion to address the people, highways, their duties as citizens and the issues of the campaign, which he discussed in a clear and able manner, and was frequently interrupted with applause

Hon Nelson Dingley, Jr., was also introduced and addressed the meeting in a few remarks, which were received with applause

Hon Eugene Hale was then introduced
